From Bishop Peter Muhich on the Supreme Court decision of Dobbs Vs. Jackson June 24, 2022

Almost 350 years ago, St. Margaret Mary Alacoque began having apparitions of Jesus where he revealed his Sacred Heart to her. Christ revealed his wounded heart because he desires everyone to experience his love and mercy, to be enveloped in his grace and communion with the Father.

On this great Feast day, we celebrate that the Diocese of Rapid City will ordain another man to the office of priesthood extending Christ's mercy in a tangible way.

We also celebrate an end to the constitutional decision that has brought more death to our homes than all US wars combined. Thank you to the countless pro-life witnesses who have labored for fifty years with a desire to create a culture of life, love, and mercy. Our work is not over.

As those decisions flow back to our states and elected representatives, we must continue to labor for life. I am confident that this important step towards building a civilization of life will be followed up with our continued commitment to support mothers in need, their children, and the least among us.

The enemy of the world will not be joyful about this. Do not be afraid of the noise that will ensue because of this decision, but draw your hearts toward the Sacred Heart of Jesus and the Immaculate Heart of Mary.

Sacred Heart of Jesus, have mercy on us.
 Immaculate Heart of Mary, pray for us.

Thank you for praying for

Make a practice of praying in Thanksgiving after Mass song concludes. Fr. Mark Horn of Hill City suggests this:

Soul of Christ, sanctify me.
 Body of Christ, save me.
 Blood of Christ, inebriate me.
 Water from the side of Christ, wash me.
 Passion of Christ, strengthen me.
 O Good Jesus, hear me.
 Within your wounds hide me.
 Permit me not to be separated from you.
 From the wicked foe, defend me.
 At the hour of my death, call me
 and bid me come to you
 That with your saints I may praise you
 For ever and ever. Amen.

Catechism of the Catholic Church

1878 All men are called to the same end: God himself. There is a certain resemblance between the union of the divine persons and the fraternity that men are to establish among themselves in truth and love. Love of neighbor is inseparable from love for God.

1879 The human person needs to live in society. Society is not for him an extraneous addition but a requirement of his nature. Through the exchange with others, mutual service and dialogue with his brethren, man develops his potential; he thus responds to his vocation.

1880 ...By means of society, each man is established as an "heir" and receives certain "talents" that enrich his identity and whose fruits he must develop. He rightly owes loyalty to the communities of which he is part and respect to those in authority who have charge of the common good.

1881 Each community is defined by its purpose and consequently obeys specific rules; but "the human person . . . is and ought to be the principle, the subject and the end of all social institutions."

1882 ...To promote the participation of the greatest number in the life of a society, the creation of voluntary associations and institutions must be encouraged "on both national and international levels, which relate to economic and social goals, to cultural and recreational activities, to sport, to various professions, and to political affairs." ... It develops the qualities of the person, especially the sense of initiative and responsibility, and helps guarantee his rights.

1884 God has not willed to reserve to himself all exercise of power. He entrusts to every creature the functions it is capable of performing, according to the capacities of its own nature. This mode of governance ought to be followed in social life. the way God acts in governing the world, which bears witness to such great regard for human freedom, should inspire the wisdom of those who govern human communities. They should behave as ministers of divine providence.
